

ONE PATIENT CONFESSES PART IN MURDER PLOT

SURVEY BEGUN IN DIXON AND ITS ENVIRONS

Thorough Study to be Made of Conditions of the Community

The Dixon Community Survey which is an important part of the intensive community development plan undertaken by Dixon, Rochelle, and Sycamore, started this morning. As described in recent issues of the Telegraph, the Dixon Chamber of Commerce takes pride in its participation in this development project. Various committees have been working on this matter for several months. Many conferences have been held in Chicago, and Dixon, Rochelle and Sycamore, getting everything in readiness for this big movement.

The Edwin G. Booz Surveys of Chicago have been selected to conduct these community surveys. They report a fine spirit of cooperation on the part of the people of Rochelle and Sycamore, where they have already completed their field work.

Elmer Bushnell and George A. Fry of the survey organization have been in Dixon several days and with the assistance of representatives of the chamber of commerce have made the arrangements preliminary to the work of visiting the people of the community. Approximately one out of every five families will be interviewed to obtain information to be used in the effort to make this community a better place in which to live and do business.

The gentlemen who are to be in Dixon until the work of interviewing is completed are Romney E. Ashton, Webb Hill, and Lars Carlson.

A complete questionnaire has been compiled for use in this survey. When the interviewer calls, do not hesitate to give your frank opinion in response to the various questions. The names of the people interviewed are not connected with these questionnaires and the interviewers do not ask or take any names and do not have the identity of the persons interviewed.

The one object of this survey is to help Dixon and the surrounding territory. It is respectfully requested that the questions be given careful attention so that helping this community to further improve and develop. Further announcements will be made from time to time as the work progresses.

Much Booze Being Made in St. Louis Raids Show

St. Louis, April 27.—Liquor in large quantities is being manufactured in St. Louis, it was disclosed today following the first of a series of raids planned by the police department.

About 25,000 gallons of mash and 15,000 gallons of "singlings" of liquor were found by raiders in two south side district buildings on Saturday when more than 400 persons were arrested. The liquors were drained into sewers.

In one frame structure a 250 gallon capacity still was found, the coil still hot. In a cottage two large scientifically constructed vats were disclosed. Both were nearly full of mash and "singlings."

Among those arrested at various places in the district, were ten men said to have police records, 14 saloon proprietors and 180 vagrants. The police announced that raids were the beginning of a campaign to rid the city of lawbreakers.

Baird's Corn Shows Fine in Test Made by Experts

O. L. Baird of this city is jubilant today because of a report of tests made on his seed corn by W. G. Griffith of McNabb, one of the outstanding corn experts in the state. Concerning the Dixon man's samples Mr. Griffith writes: "I will say we have not tested a better sample of corn this year so far as germination or freedom from disease is concerned." Ninety ears showed no disease and germinated perfectly. Forty-seven ears germinated good and showed but little disease and no chlorosis and very little of other diseases.

First Session Special School Scheduled for Monday Eve.

Considerable interest has been manifested by the merchants, clerks and citizens of Dixon over the proposed business school that is to be directed by Professor Edward F. Gardner of the University of Wisconsin.

This school will consist of twelve separate sessions of instruction on salesmanship and business development and will be given during a period of thirteen months beginning May 4th and ending June 1st, 1926. One session will be held each month and will be under the personal direction of Prof. Edw. F. Gardner of the University of Wisconsin. The dates will be announced later for each month.

In addition to the regular lesson sessions there will be a series of special lectures on subjects pertinent to the art of salesmanship, business promotion and community development. These lectures will be given by men who are recognized as being authorities in their particular line and men who are prominent throughout the country in their respective fields.

Enrollment Fee is Low.
The enrollment fee for the entire course is $10.00 and it is considered a very low price for a course of this kind and could not be purchased elsewhere for anything like the sum. Correspondence courses cost considerably more and one cannot gain half as much from a correspondence course as by a school of the kind that is to be held in Dixon.

This school is open to any one in the entire community and students in the schools will be welcome as it will be a very good opportunity of receiving instruction of this kind at a minimum charge. Any one that is interested in this course should get in touch with the members in charge or

HINDENBURG CHOSEN PRESIDENT BY GERMAN VOTERS

Former War Lord Won By Big Majority of Votes of Republic.

BULLETIN

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Berlin, April 27.—When told this morning of his election to the German presidency, Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, who is at his son's estate near Hanover, declared "God grant that party strife may at last end. Everything is decided now. Let us hope the people now will learn complete unity, for in union there is strength."

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Berlin, April 27.—Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's "front porch" campaign, conducted from his home in Hanover, has been successful and next week he will be inducted into office as the first popularly elected president of Germany.

The first president, the late Friedrich Ebert, was named by the national assembly immediately after the revolution which established the republic. Due Von Hindenburg was chosen by direct vote of the people.

Running as the choice of the nationalist-conservative bloc, consisting of the parties of the united right, he received 14,639,399 votes, or 48.3 per cent of the total valid ballots cast in yesterday's polling. He obtained a plurality of 886,759 over his principal opponent, former Chancellor Dr. Wilhelm Marx, candidate of the republican bloc, who received 13,752,640 votes. Ernst Thaelmann, the communist, trailed with 1,931,591.

Dr. Marx Was Busy.
Dr. Marx, backed by the centrists, democrats and socialists, conducted a whirlwind campaign on the American plan, delivering several scheduled addresses daily, as well as speaking from the rear platform of his train when occasion offered.

Von Hindenburg took little active part in the fight, and did not even visit himself, but his supporters were busy everywhere waging a strenuous campaign.

The women's votes and the heavy turnout of former stay-at-homes are believed to have been responsible for his victory over such a seasoned political campaigner as Dr. Marx. The latter, however, failed to arouse much enthusiasm in the ranks of the democratic party, which was but an unwilling partner in the so-called Weimar coalition. Dr. Marx's supporters also freely admit that anti-Catholic feeling militated strongly against their candidate's prospects.

Faces Strong Opposition.
The Reichstag will re-convene next Tuesday and Von Hindenburg, if he follows established custom will have the republican oath administered to him sometime during the week, by Paul Loebe, in the presence of a parliament, in which he probably has more opponents than supporters, as the centrists, democrats, socialists, and communists command 277 seats against only 216 for the right.

Early voting was the rule in Berlin and the crush at many of the polling places was so great that violent encounters at times broke out, and the police were busily occupied in separating the fighters.

More serious trouble occurred at Karlsruhe, where two persons were killed and a number wounded in a clash between republicans and nationalists.

Election Hurts Stocks.
Disturbances also took place at Rathbrunn, in Silesia, when an erroneous announcement was published that Dr. Marx was leading Von Hindenburg by nearly 2,000,000 votes. The nationalists, roused by this, gathered and began marching through the streets. Dispersed by the police, they obtained re-informations, and besieged the police stations in various towns in the area.

Scores of arrests were made. The election of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg to the German presidency reacted unfavorably on the Bourse today, many of the industrials dropping 2 to 5 points on account of a feeling of insecurity with respect to the immediate political effect and the adverse editorial comment beginning to come in from abroad.

Men, Found on Lonely Road, Beaten, Silent

Joseph "Skut" Keenan, formerly of this city, but late of Grand Detour, was found last evening east of the city in Lover's Lane and reported to the police as being dead. Parties who were driving through the lane noticed the body lying beside the road, apparently lifeless and the face covered with blood.

Keenan was taken to the county jail where he was given immediate medical attention and was found to have suffered a brutal beating. He appeared to know he had been assaulted but refused to give any particulars. Police stated this morning that through an investigation started last evening they had found the party who was responsible for Keenan's condition. Keenan is being held at the county jail where he is receiving medical attention.

Comment on Von Hindenburg; Is Called a Menace

MENACE TO WORLD PEACE

By Associated Press Leased Wire. New York, April 27.—The election of Field Marshal Hindenburg as president of Germany is a menace to world peace in the opinion of James Girard, former ambassador to Germany.

Prominent Germans here, however, saw in the election hopes for a united, peaceful nation.

SURPRISE IN WASHINGTON

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Washington, April 27.—His psychological effect outside of Germany rather than what it may portend as a new direction in German politics appears to be the chief concern in official circles here in viewing the triumph of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg in yesterday's election.

Continued official silence did not conceal today a reaction of surprise bordering on shock with the generally held view that Germany has taken a step almost for a period at least, to hinder her progress toward recuperation from the war.

There appears to be no disposition here, however, to take the alarmist view, regarded as more or less to be expected in France and other allied countries, that the election means a trend toward either militarism or monarchy in Germany.

MAY OPEN WORLD'S EYES.

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Paris, April 27.—Von Hindenburg's election may prove beneficial if it opens the eyes of the world to the real sentiment of the German people. This was the opinion expressed in official circles, where the result of yesterday's polling caused no surprise.

In the same quarter it was said that the large women's vote for the field marshal was the most significant feature of the election. The men, it was believed, had voted for either Dr. Marx or Von Hindenburg in the greater part for party reasons, while the women voted for the war hero, if he was held, probably were chiefly sentimental.

A spokesman at the foreign office said, "ought to open the eyes of the world to the fact that there is no such horror of war and militarism among the German people as has been thought in certain countries."

"This lesson ought to be meditated upon, particularly in the Anglo-Saxon countries, where there has been a marked disposition to give the German people credit for having converted to pacifism."

Dr. Marx, it was pointed out, showed himself equally hostile to the treaty of Versailles. His proposal that Germany annex Austria was quite as alarming to the allies as any extreme project Von Hindenburg might have in view. The conclusion was, the spokesman said, that the success of the Field Marshal might turn out to be more advantageous in the long run if the logical lesson were drawn from it everywhere.

Devastated County Has Good Crop Expectations

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Chicago, April 27.—White county, one of the counties ravaged by the recent tornado, expects a crop eighty per cent normal, the Illinois Agricultural Association was informed today, in a letter from Ed Creighton, farm adviser of the White County Farm Bureau.

The tractors are lent by local agents of their manufacturers and operating expenses paid out of the funds of the Illinois Farm Relief Committee, organized by the association.

Were to Split Money.

The understanding was that they were to split the money they got out of the sack which was pinned to Spader's undershirt. I knew he had plenty of money and so did the other boys in our ward. I went back to my cottage for my share of the split they said there wasn't any. They refused to give me any money saying that they did not get anything out of him. I noticed when I stepped into the toilet that both Jake and Smith put their hands in their pockets like they were trying to hide something from me.

I walked back out into the dormitory and they followed a short distance behind me and then they turned around and went back into the toilet. I planned Robbery Wednesday.

"On Wednesday, Sapperstein, Smith and I had planned to rob Spader." It came around this way; I asked Smith for two bits, (25 cents), and he said he didn't have any money and showed me his pocketbook. Smith said Spader had some money, and said: "Let's get him." Jake was standing there with us and he said "All right" and I did, too, and there we planned to rob him.

I was supposed to take Spader out and get him into the tunnel at 11-1 and tell him that we were going down through the tunnel to the girl's cottage. If Smith and Jake were not there I was to walk back with Spader in the tunnel to the opening at A. I. Jake had said that they would hit him in the head with a stick but Smith said they would use a piece of pipe. I know that they had a part of a broken shovel but I think that they hit Spader with a piece of pipe. I am making this statement voluntarily to clear up this murder.

From Sapperstein and Smith who were questioned at some length, I was brought out that practically all of the patients on the ward knew that Spader carried about $15 or $15 in a sack which he kept pinned to his undershirt. Both men admitted that about a week ago they had discussed "tapping Spader on the head" on

PLAN TO TAP SPADER TOLD BY SUSPECT

Two He Implicated in Colony Crime Deny His Charge

Lust for money led three feeble minded patients at Dixon state hospital to carefully plan and select one of their best friends, who was known to carry bills amounting to about $18 in a sack pinned to his undershirt, as a subject to be "tapped on the head," which plan led to murder. As soon as the body of George Spader of Freeport, patient at the institution, which was discovered Saturday morning, was removed from the north tunnel Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Dr. Warren C. Murray, superintendent of the institution, together with Dr. Charles R. Lowe and Dr. Harry G. Leon opened an investigation which continued until about 5 o'clock Sunday morning. Sheriff Elliott C. Risley and deputy working with the institution officials.

Suspects Taken to Jail.
Michael Makysnowicz, Walter Smith and Jake Sapperstein, the three feeble minded patients held as suspects of the slaying, were removed to the county jail. Owing to the crowded condition of the county jail, Sheriff Risley found it necessary to remove some of the prisoners to the Ogle county jail at Oregon while the investigation was under way so as to keep the suspects separated. The city jail also housed one of the men.

One of Men Confessed.
Shortly before 11 o'clock Saturday night, Makysnowicz broke down, fearful of being locked in a cell alone with the scene of Spader's murder fresh in his memory, and made a signed confession in the presence of the officials. In this he implicated both Smith and Sapperstein, who today denied their complicity in the crime but who are known to have discussed the plan of "tapping" Spader on the head for his money. The confession made by Makysnowicz follows:

"On Thursday evening, April 23rd, 1925, at about 7:30 or 8 o'clock, I met Spader at the A-4 ward. We walked around and entered the tunnel near the A-1 ward. We walked down the tunnel to the B-4 ward where Walter Smith and Jake Sapperstein were to meet us. They were not there when we got there. We had planned to meet there or at the tunnel entrance near A-1 cottage. Spader and I walked back in the tunnel to A-1 and there I looked out of the manhole and saw Smith and Sapperstein standing in the bushes. I was afraid that I might get hit over the head so I jumped out of the hole and ran around the dining hall. I saw Smith and Sapperstein running toward the manhole that I had come out of. I don't know which one of them hit Spader.

Loss of $400,000 in Bad Fire at Early Hour This Morn.

By Associated Press Leased Wire. Peoria, Ill., April 27.—Fire this morning destroyed the Smith Hotel, a four story brick building, and the Cohen furniture store warehouse, with a loss estimated at more than $400,000. Thirty-five guests at the hotel were awakened and all are believed to have escaped, most of them fleeing without their possessions.

The Smith hotel, which is in the heart of the business district on South Adams Street, is threatened. Scores of spectators and some firemen had narrow escapes when the walls fell. This is Peoria's third disastrous fire within ten days.

Spontaneous combustion is believed to have been the origin of flames which totally destroyed a huge amount of baled rags and paper valued at approximately $100,000 at the Barrett Company's plant at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The pile, more than three quarters of a block long, one half block wide and 40 feet high, was still sending flames in the air early this morning. FOR LOVE'S SAKE ONLY.
If thou must love me, let it be for naught
Except for love's sake only. Do not say
"I love her for her smile, her look, her way
Of speaking gently; for a trick of thought
That falls in well with mine, and certes brought
A sense of pleasant ease on such a day."
For these things in themselves, beloved,
Be changed, or change for thee,—and love
Be so wrought
May be unwroughtful so. Neither love me for
Thine own dear pity's wiping my cheek dry,
A creature might forget to weep who bore
Thy comfort long, and love thy love thereby,
But love me for love's sake, that even-ermore
Thou may'st love on through love's eternity.

Menus for a Family

Tested by SISTER MARY.
Breakfast:
Stewed rhubarb, crisp bacon, poached eggs on graham toast, milk, coffee.

Luncheon:
Toasted cheese sandwich, hearts of lettuce, pineapple bliss, sponge cake, milk, tea.

Dinner:
Lamb stew with dumplings, boiled macaroni, stuffed cabbage, molded dandelion salad, caramel custard, milk, coffee, whole wheat bread.

There are no dishes suggested in these menus that may not be served to children of four years of age. Perhaps the dumplings should be taboo for very small persons, but the macaroni, a bit of the cabbage without the stuffing, the salad, custard, milk, bread and some of the stew itself offer a wide choice.

Stuffed Cabbage.
One solid, medium-sized head of cabbage, 3 cups bread crumbs from soft part of loaf, 1 cup finely chopped cooked ham, 1 tablespoon minced green pepper, 4 tablespoons melted butter, yolks 2 eggs, 1/2 cup cracker crumbs.

Remove the coarse outer leaves of the cabbage. Cut out the stalk and cabbage around it to make a good-sized cavity, but leave a shell about one inch thick. Cook the cabbage shell in boiling water for ten minutes. Dip into cold water and drain. Combine bread crumbs with ham, melted butter, green pepper and yolks of eggs. Mix thoroughly and fill cabbage with mixture. Cover filling with a coarse cabbage leaf. Put two or three strips of bacon in a casserole and place the cabbage on the bacon. Put a piece of bacon on top of the cabbage and pour in two cups boiling water. Place cover on casserole and cook in a slow oven for two hours. Take off the cabbage leaf covering the stuffing, sprinkle with cracker crumbs and dot with bits of butter. Brown in a hot oven.

Molded Dandelion Salad.
One cup cooked dandelion greens, 2 hard-boiled eggs, 1 tablespoon granulated gelatine, 4 tablespoons lemon juice, 4 tablespoons cold water, 1/2 cups boiling water.
Chop the greens very finely. Soften gelatine in cold water and add boiling water. Stir until dissolved and let cool slightly. Add lemon juice and let stand until beginning to set. Fold in greens. Line a large mold or six small molds with slices of hard-boiled egg and add the gelatine mixture. Let stand until chilled and firm. Serve on lettuce with a boiled tart dressing. Dixon H. S. Glee Club Won Second Place

The members of the Boys' Glee club of the Dixon High school are doing some splendid work this year, and have shown the results of their efforts in their public appearances of late.
Last Saturday they entertained the District Contest at Freeport, singing as their number, "The Bells of St. Mary's." The club won high marks in the contest, and even though they were slightly in arrears of the club winning first place, which was the Freeport club, the final average was so close that the boys feel the results well worth their efforts.

Those from Dixon who attended the contest remarked that the work done by the Glee club was of a very unusual quality. The enunciation, attack, tone quality, and many other requisites, which are necessary for a high-class Glee club of boys, were in evidence.

ANNIVERSARY OF ODD FELLOWS IS HAPPY OCCASION

Fine Address by Warden Whitman of Joliet a Feature

By F. E. B.

Members of Dixon Lodge No. 38, I. O. O. F. and Minnie Bell Rebekah lodge fittingly observed the 105th anniversary of the founding of the order in this country at their hall Saturday evening. A splendid program had been prepared, the chief feature of which was an address by Warden John Whitman of the Joliet penitentiary.

The rooms were comfortably filled with members of the two lodges and their families when L. F. Redfern of the committee in charge called assemblage to order. Attorney H. A. Brooks had been chosen chairman of the evening and he in turn announced the numbers on the program which was as follows:

Violin solo—Louis Snow, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Orville West-gore.

Quartet, composed of Chas. Swirn, Denning Hintz, Niles Palmer and B. S. Schilberg, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Palmer.

Address by Warden Whitman. Two duet numbers by the little Misses Lillian and Helen and Marian and Jeanette Wolber.

Vocal solo by Mrs. Wolber.

In introducing the speaker of the evening Chairman Brooks paid a beautiful tribute to this well known state official, citing his many years of service in the supervision of penal institutions, including Bridewell House of Correction, the Cook County Jail and for the past eight years as warden of the state penitentiary at Joliet. The construction of the new prison at Stateville, the finest and most perfectly arranged penal institution in the world, is due in a large measure to Warden Whitman, said Mr. Brooks.

Pleaded for "Prevention."

In beginning his talk Mr. Whitman pleaded for "prevention" as a possible solution of the criminal problem which confronts the citizens of Illinois today. "School teachers and parents must cooperate to instill into the minds of the youth a wholesome respect for law and authority," he said. His address throughout was one of great interest and the facts brought out were a revelation to most of his hearers. He told of the methods of handling the prisoners as individuals instead of as a mass, as in years past. Each prisoner is examined as to his mental, physical and moral status and is treated and trained in a manner which will appeal to the best instincts in him to the end that when the time comes for his release he shall return to his community an asset rather than a liability to society. "Time was," said Mr. Whitman, "when all prisoners were treated alike." The new prison at Stateville is especially arranged that this classification of prisoners can be carried on in a successful manner. He told of the honor farm, at which place there are at present 150 prisoners held without restraint.

Loeb and Leopold.
In this connection he spoke of the two noted prisoners Loeb and Leopold and assured his hearers that were

German Helmets for Milady

they eligible in other respects the notoriety of their case and public sentiment would prevent these hats from ever qualifying for the form. These two prisoners, said the warden, have adapted themselves to their surroundings and "have their noses to the grindstone" the same as other inmates. The vicious class of criminals, such as occupy the first pages in the newspapers, constitute a very small per cent of the population of the prison. The majority of inmates of the prison are found upon examination to be mental defectives of inmates and the demarkation between penal institutions and hospitals for the insane and feeble minded is in reality hard to distinguish.

Upholds Parole Law.
Mr. Whitman in his address took occasion to uphold the present parole law of which, by the way, he was one of the framers. By careful studying and checking up the speaker said it has been found that 87 per cent of the parole cases were complete successes. Of the remaining 13, two return to crime, six are lost sight of and five are rearrested for technical violation of their parole, perhaps for such trivial acts as staying out after 9 o'clock or leaving their boarding house without permission, etc.

The address was replete with information on a vitally important subject and the committee is to be congratulated upon bringing Mr. Whitman to Dixon.

Following the program the crowd gathered in the banquet room where refreshments, prepared by the Rebekahs, were served.
The last feature of the entertainment was the dance which was enjoyed by a large crowd.

ENTRANCING PERFUMES.

In mysterious Tibet, the rulers forbid the killing of the deer from which musk is taken. Tibet is a long way from here, but this ban will have its effects locally... For musk is used in the manufacture of high-grade perfumes almost without exception.

Trading has ended national isolation, for us and for all other countries. A hunting law in Tibet, an earthquake killing Japanese silkworms, Brazilian revolt interfering with the coffee supply... and the list is endless. Nothing of importance can happen in any part of the world without affecting all other parts.

Tibet, like China, practices drastic penalties. Hunters who defy the ban and kill musk deer will have their hands chopped off and nailed to the doors of temples.

They will not need many game wardens. Perfumery is probably the oldest of woman's artificial lures... The cave girl decorated her hair with sweet-smelling jungle blossoms. Crafty orientals figured out how to extract the powerful scent. They started the perfumery industry.

Perfumes have reached their highest development in the orient, where water is usually too scarce for frequent bathing. It was a problem of inventing perfumery or gas masks, to enable filthy people to get within speaking distance of each other—and perfumes won.

The first perfumes, after musk, were frankincense, myrrh and other dried gums obtained from trees in India and forms of commerce. Perfumes and jewels and witchcraft tokens were transported by camel caravans over long and stifling deserts and in primitive frail boats over the stormy seas.

As transportation was developed, the traders began to carry other wares. But perfumery was one of the first, and the history of this industry abounds with romantic adventure. Today the industry is "scientific"—and correspondingly dull. Last year, for instance, 11 million pounds of rose petals were taken out of the Valley of Roses in Bulgaria—and this stupendous amount yielded only 470 ounces of oil of roses. An ounce of oil of roses, of course, makes a vast quantity of perfumery.

POST BOXES.

Don't let the new postal rates worry you. Pay the extra cent on picture postcards and be glad you can't live in Danzig.

Poland was granted rights under the treaty of Versailles to establish a postoffice in the Free City of Danzig. The Poles added 10 letter boxes scattered through the city. The boxes were painted in the Polish national colors.

During the night German sympathizers painted the boxes in the German national colors. Poland, insulted, sent a squad of airplanes over the city. Prussia massed troops. Meanwhile the League of Nations ruled that the Poles had overstepped their authority in erecting the 10 boxes. The case has been put to the world court for settlement, where league members hope the expense will fall heavy on the Poles as a chastisement.

All of which won't make international feeling in Europe any better.

All because of 10 post boxes.

SCIENCE.

We live in an age where one miracle follows so fact on the heels of another that we have grown actually blasé about it.

You read about the attempt to transmit an X-Ray picture of a human hand by telephone wire from Chicago to New York, and think little of it, so remarkable have been the results of other "telephoned" pictures.

But to science, the success of the test is of utmost importance. For one thing it may mean X-ray diagnosis at great distance within a short time.

LUCKY.

News from Europe: France is in the throes of one of the worst crises in the history of the third republic. King Boris of Bulgaria narrowly escapes death at the hands of assassins. Here in America there is stability, prosperity, plenty of work to keep malcontents out of mischief.

Even the most dyed-in-the-wool, "down with everything" kickers have to acknowledge that, after all, things are not so bad here. When they start to tell you what's wrong with the country invite them to look at Europe.

GROWTH.

Unofficial figures compiled at Washington indicate that the population of the United States will be 113 million by July.

That's an increase of something like eight million in five years. Two million are immigrants; nearly six million native born.

We are growing fast, but there's room for even faster growth. There are enough resources here and enough land to take care of many times 113 millions.

A philosopher is one who realizes that trouble is just opportunity knocking to offer him a little exercise.

Why should business wait for politics, when politics never waits for business.

Great groans from little ache corns grow.

Women are real nice people, but sometimes we think they haven't a bit more sense than men.

BIG BOOTLEGGER CAN NOT BE KEPT HIDDEN

It will cost 50 cents apiece to keep all alcohol next year. At least, $6,000,000 is the present estimate of the cost of prohibition enforcement. It is a lot of money. But think how much more it would cost to keep us all drunk!

Incidentally, if the sum, or twice it, could be used to buy big bootleggers, the small ones would take care of themselves.

There will always be individual booze peddlers, so long as they can find customers, just as they are individual peddlers of "dope" and "cokes." But all they can do, with all the supplies they can get or concoct, will never supply millions of lawbreakers. The thing can be done wholesale only by capitalized and organized industry. That, sooner or later becomes visible. It is the only crime which has organized fleets of pirate ships, a wholesale system of automobile stealing and of smuggling contraband both ways across the border, and an international financial and distribution system.

Institutions of that size can not be hid. When they are closed, the small peddlers and the small courts can look out for the small bootleggers, and not much harm if they do not catch them all. It takes cargoes, not flasks, to do the business wholesale.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 10—AT THE PHOTOGRAPH MAN'S

"Now don't move until I count five," said the photograph man.

Snitcher Snatch led Mister Whizz and the Twins a merry chase. By the time they had jumped into their tiny aeroplane to follow him, he was leagues and leagues away.

You have no idea how fast a goblin can travel, once he gets started. But finally they caught up—Nancy and Nick and Mister Whizz did—just as the little rascal was going into a photograph gallery. A photograph gallery is a place where you get your picture taken.

"I'll just park my aeroplane in this vacant lot across the street," said Mister Whizz. "Then we'll follow him. I can't imagine what he is going into a photograph gallery for.

He isn't so handsome that anyone would want his picture, unless maybe it might be his mother or some of his relations. I'm sure that I should not give it room on my mantelpiece." Nancy laughed. "Poor Snitcher Snatch!" she said. "His nose is so long I don't believe the photograph man could get it all in the picture."

"No," agreed Mister Whizz. "He'd have to do like they do in stories, sometimes, and if the first card wouldn't hold it all, say 'to be continued' and put the rest of his nose on another."

I don't know whether the Twins knew what he was talking about or not, but it doesn't matter.

They all got out of the aeroplane as fast as they could and followed the fast little goblin into the photograph gallery.

The front room has a velvet carpet on the floor, and nice comfortable chairs all about, and dozens of pictures on the walls.

But no one was there—no sign of the person they were after, at least. "We'll just take a peep in here,"

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRES-COTT TO SYDNEY CARTON

My Dear Sydney Please do not think because I did not answer your letter immediately that I was not particularly glad to get it and its enclosure. It showed me that you were a true friend, not only to John Alden Prescott but to John Alden Prescott's wife.

Your letter, my dear Sydney, was just what I would expect you to write. I cleared up many things for me and did me a great deal of good. This was not so much because of what you said as it was because of what you did not say.

I saw my own shortcomings as I had never seen them before, and I want to acknowledge right here and now to you that I have come to the conclusion that I am as much to blame for the misunderstandings between Jack and myself as he is.

And I also want to promise you that I am going to try very hard to get his point of view, which I see from your letter is really the masculine point of view.

I probably will not get it all at once, dear friend, but I am writing this letter that you may know that I am determined to succeed and that I shall be just to him without any prejudice if possible.

I shall not refer to this matter again, dear Sydney, and I know you will not. It is a humiliating thing to me to let even as good a friend as you are into the sacred precincts of my personal life. It almost seems a desecration.

I know of no one, however, to whom I would rather acknowledge Jack's neglect and my hurt feelings because of it than to the man who is my boy's godfather.

When we get back into our new home I hope you will be a frequent visitor, Sydney. I hope we will see much more of you than we have since our marriage.

But we will forget, will we not, that we ever wrote each other in this fashion?

Please, please do not think that I am blaming you in any way. I shall always consider what you did as an act of true friendship and I shall hide it away in rosemary and lavender. But you will forgive me if I say that I don't want to think of it or the letter which my husband wrote you, which occasioned your letter to me, for many years. Time may soften the hurt, but just now it smartens and throbs like a deep burn in my soul.

I believe, my friend, that you will understand and will not call me selfish because I want to forget.

I wonder if you realize that you have not seen your godchild yet that even you attended the ceremony of his christening by proxy. Many times when I bend over his cradle, instead of the little prayer you asked me to say I send a petition up to the Great White Throne that my boy may grow up as good a man as his godfather.

My friend, I hope, as long as I shall live.

The Leviathan's Second Class Dining Room With Its Invisible Orchestra.

On the steamship Leviathan science has been called upon to help passengers in the second class dining room share the pleasures of the first class dining room. The music, which is one of the attractions of which the vessel is proud, would naturally be limited to the hall where the orchestra happened to be playing.

But a Public Address System has abolished the natural limitations. A microphone, suspended near the music gallery in the first class dining room, picks up all the precious sounds which are amplified by vacuum tube amplifiers and then carried to the second class dining room. Here, away from the actual presence of the orchestra, passengers have exactly the same music as the diners who are within sight of the musicians.

The system was installed on the giant liner by Western Electric engineers, and a jury of distinguished musicians listened to the trials to determine whether the quality of the reproduction was satisfactory.

Edwin Franko Goldman, the handmaster, was unofficially foreman of the jury. He was distinctly impressed as he stood in the second class hall and heard the program as amplified and projected by the Public Address System. The enthusiasm of all the

DIXON FAILED TO PLACE IN MORRIS MEETING SATURDAY

None of Rock River Conference Teams Made Good Showing

Records were broken in seven events and equaled in two others in the annual track and field games at Mt. Morris College Saturday. Although postponed at one time because of rain, most of the teams entered were on hand for the opening event.

In spite of the fact that it was necessary to run the preliminaries which had been scheduled for the morning in the afternoon, allowing very little time for rest between the preliminaries and the finals new Mt. At any rate the fact that each man was doing his best is encouraging, for it is with such material that successful teams are made. It might be interesting to note that none of the Rock River Conference teams stood up so very well in this competition. Sterling made the best showing with 9 points and second in the relay. Rochelle made 7 points while Mt. Morris and Polo failed to place in a single event.

GRADE TEAMS ARE READY FOR THEIR ANNUAL TOURNEYS

First Game Will Be Played Friday of This Week.

(By Murphy)

The grade school baseball tournament, conducted annually by the Physical Department of the Dixon Y. M. C. A., will open the 1925 season Friday afternoon at 4:15 when the North and South Central schools meet for the initial game of the season at the Assembly Park diamond. Three schools have teams this year, the North Central, South Central and the E. C. Smith, and all appear to have strong lineups.

The organization of the tournament was completed Friday afternoon when the captains and managers of the teams met in the physical office at the Y, turned in a roster of players, formulated rules and regulations, and flipped for first game and place of playing. The games will be played on two diamonds, the Assembly Park diamond being the home grounds for the North Central and the South Side Park being the South Central and E. C. Smith grounds. The games will run throughout the month of May and will be played on Mondays, Thursdays and Fridays, the time of starting being 4:15.

The schedule of games together with the date and place of playing follows:

Friday, May 1—North Central vs South Central at north side.

Thursday, May 8, South Central vs E. C. Smith, at south side.

Monday, May 11, North Central vs E. C. Smith, at south side.

Friday, May 15, South Central vs South Central, at south side.

An EASIER furnace to tend

WIDE, double feed doors make the COLONIAL a mighty easy furnace to fire. The man who appreciates this most is he who has put up for a few years with a small, narrow, single feed door.

What a nuisance it was to try to feed large lumps of fuel, or a quantity of wood, coals or trash! On the other hand, how easy it is with the COLONIAL'S wide, double feed doors!

Many COLONIAL owners know that an extra large lump of coal will hold fire longer than if broken into small bits. Thus, the larger doors net a substantial fuel saving.

Be sure your furnace has this desirable feature.

IF YOU ARE PLANNING TO BUILD—READ THESE ADS—AND SAVE MONEY

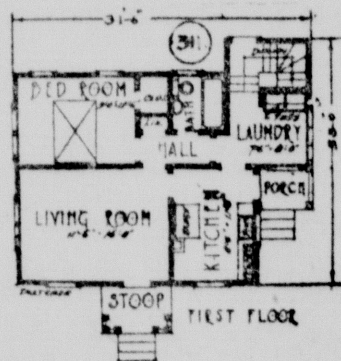

A small house with a properly arranged floor-plan and just the right number of rooms is often more desirable than the larger ones, especially for the young couple just starting out in life.

Thatcher has most of the good features and none of the bad features of some houses. The designs of the exterior is of the colonial type, the wide siding and shuttered windows, with the trellised porch-column and sawed brackets at the roof-line, all being details of this popular type.

There are in the plan a living-room, bedroom and kitchen besides the bath and laundry or service porch. The porch, which is seldom found in the smaller homes, accommodates the laundry-trays and storage space as well provides covered entrance to the cellar. The side entrance and stoop at the kitchen also are rather unusual.

Cupboard space and room for the sink are provided under the window in the kitchen where there is plenty of light; and there also is plenty of room at the front for a small dining-table. The cellar is just large enough for fruit and vegetables and a storeroom.

Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Boutonnieres and Belts

A valued correspondent, not just valued in the perfunctory epistolary sense, but valued because he takes an intelligent interest in correct dress, writes to inquire when and where it is permissible to wear a flower in the lapel of the coat. This question recalls the celebrated incident of the great author at a reception, who, wearing a carnation in his button-hole, was stopped by an aggressive woman who exclaimed, "Why, Mr. So-And-So, you almost look like a lady." Retorted the author, bowing low, "So do you, madam!" In France and England, the flower thrust through the lapel of one's lounge coat is regarded as a decoration, but in America it is too often looked upon as an affectation. We are drolly self-conscious about such things, just as we are about wearing formal clothes or standing hat in hand in the street when talking to a woman.

However, there is this to be said about the practice of wearing a flower—it should only be seen when one's dress is studiously subdued and when the handkerchief in the breast pocket is simple. Otherwise, an over-dress air is inevitable and disagreeable. Every bridegroom, striving to forget his purple past in the primrose future, should wear a flower in his coat lapel. Its freshness serves to distract notice from his wilted look. Moreover, it symbolizes sunshine and high hopes, which should be accompaniments of every ceremony whether it be an affair of matrimony or even matter-of-money.

It's a far cry from boutonnieres to belts, though both uphold one's dignity. The colored web belt of silk or lisle, as illustrated here, is rapidly coming to the front as an important accessory of the sportsman's dress. Its bright pattern formed by rich stripes, often in club, regional and blazer colors, sounds a bold and characteristic note in the turnout for field and country. Such a belt may be wide or narrow and is usually set off with contrasting leather tongue and facings.

Such a belt is too conspicuous to be worn with town or business clothes and should never be lifted out of its proper environment—the Great Outdoors. It goes well with golf and particularly with tennis, having, because of its elastic construction, more give-and-take than the all-leather belt, which is prone to be stiff and to whipsaw the waist. Many men possess half-a-dozen sporting belts of this type, using them to round out different color themes. The buckle may be switched to the side of the trouser, if you prefer.

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton © 1925 NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY SO FAR:
GLORIA GORDON, beautiful flapper, marries DICK GREGORY, struggling young lawyer. Her idea of marriage is good times, good clothes . . . and no work or children!

Dick borrows his mother's maid, MAGGIE, to teach Gloria to cook. But she refuses to learn.

Dick has an attack of flu. While he is working at home with MISS BRIGGS, his secretary, Gloria plans a housewarming. She asks STANLEY WAYBURN, an actor with whom she was once in love, to be one of the guests. He accepts.

When Dick meets Wayburn he is instantly jealous, although the actor devotes himself to MRS. GAIL. Glory drinks too much, and faints away while dancing with DR. JOHN SEYMOUR, whose wife, MAY, is in love with JIM CAREWE. The party breaks up when LOLA HUGHES, BILL, her husband, for petting, Maggie, disgusted, quits her job and returns to MOTHER GREGORY.

Then Gloria hires RANCHILD SWANSON, although Dick says they can't afford a maid. She buys $400 worth of new clothes, and insists upon a new automobile. Dick sells his old car to pay for the new one.

They go to Gloria's parents on her birthday, and while they are at dinner, Dick gives Gloria a folded sheet of paper which, he says, contains a birthday gift.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

GLORY took the folded sheet of paper that Dick held out to her. "Birthday present?" she repeated. "Why, I thought my darling little car was all the birthday present I was going to get!"

Dick laughed indulgently. "Well, I thought I'd better give you two presents this year. Next birthday I may be too poor to give you even one," he said. "Aren't you going to take a look at my gift, Littlest?"

Glory unfolded the thick crackling sheet. It was a certificate for ten shares of telephone stock. She had it across the table to her father. "Isn't that nice?" she asked. "The dividends from it ought to buy me a hat once in a while, don't you think?"

Mrs. Gordon looked ruefully at Dick. "That girl and her hats!" she exclaimed. "Do you know, Dick, after Glory was married, I was looking through her clothes closet. And I found eight hats that she'd left on the closet shelf. Eight of them! Not old hats, either, but new fall ones!"

"Well, now, Mother," Glory's father interrupted, "that was all right. You can't blame a girl for fixing herself up for her beau, can you? Dick thought he was courting Glory but she was really courting him . . . with her hats. She was like a bird preening its feathers in making time, that's all."

"She goes right on preening, sir," Dick said humorously. "She's bought a half dozen hats since we've been married."

"I have not!" Glory contradicted furiously. "I've had only three!"

"DICK, you make me tired with all this talk of yours on economy, anyhow!" Glory reopened the subject on the way home. "All you do is preach to me that we're too poor to afford a maid, or a machine, or a few decent clothes . . . And then you turn right 'round and buy a thousand dollars' worth of telephone stock that means absolutely nothing in my life! . . . What I want to know is how you could afford to do it if we're as poor as you say we are?"

Dick walked on in silence for several minutes. "As a matter of fact, I couldn't afford to do it. I nearly broke my neck trying to pay for that stock," he said at last. "I borrowed part of the money from Dad. And you know I had to sell my roadster to buy you your car."

Glory looked at him for a moment. "You sold your car?"

"Yes, I sold it. I had to. I had to sell it to get the money to buy you your car."

"You sold your car?"

"Yes, I sold it. I had to. I had to sell it to get the money to buy you your car."

"You sold your car?"

"Yes, I sold it. I had to. I had to sell it to get the money to buy you your car."

"You sold your car?"

"Yes, I sold it. I had to. I had to sell it to get the money to buy you your car."

"You sold your car?"

"Yes, I sold it. I had to. I had to sell it to get the money to buy you your car."

"You sold your car?"

"Yes, I sold it. I had to. I had to sell it to get the money to buy you your car."

"You sold your car?"

"Yes, I sold it. I had to. I had to sell it to get the money to buy you your car."

"Take a look at the stubs in that," he said abruptly. "They'll give you an idea of what we're spending."

"That's right, rub it in! Make me feel like a selfish pig!" Glory interrupted. "Just because I want a car like every other woman in town, your own precious mother included!"

"I don't believe I deserve this outburst from you, Glory," Dick said. "In fact, I know I don't. And if you want to stand here and cry . . . go ahead and do it! I'm going home. . . ."

But he didn't move. Glory knew he wouldn't. She went on crying. Then she felt Dick's arms around her. She put her head down on his shoulder. "You're so mean to me," she sobbed. They walked on.

"I'm so sorry you think so, sweet heart," Dick said quietly. "I suppose I shouldn't worry you about money matters, but I've been running behind lately. . . . Gosh, I hadn't figured on married life being as expensive as it is! . . . I wonder how people get along who have two or three children to feed and clothe. . . ."

"Well, that's one thing you needn't worry about . . . babies," Glory said, "because we aren't going to have any, ever!"

"Not ever?" Dick asked gravely. The hand tightened on her arm. "What's the big idea? Don't you really want children, Glory?"

"Don't kid yourself," she said firmly. "Children are the very last things in the world that I want, Dick."

"You'll feel differently about it later on . . . In a year or two," he assured her. "Every woman wants a family."

"I never will!" Glory told herself, as they turned into their own street.

BY the end of the week Glory had learned to drive the car. She went Christmas shopping in it, bringing it home loaded with ribboned packages.

"You'll just perfectly kill me, Dick, when the bills come in!" Glory said one morning. "So don't buy me a Christmas present . . . just pay my bills instead, like a good sport! They aren't so awfully big."

But when the bills came in the first week in January, they were very big . . . much larger than Glory had expected. She was sure that the stores had made a mistake in them, somewhere.

She went over them again and again, with the same result. She owed exactly six hundred dollars . . . On the third day she screwed up her courage to show them to Dick.

She would take them to him at his office.

Miss Briggs would be there, of course. And Dick couldn't read and rave about the bills in front of Miss Briggs!

Glory dressed herself with great care. On the way downtown she stopped at the florist's and bought an orchid for her coat. The windshield mirror told her that she was looking unusually lovely.

It would be much harder for Dick to quarrel with a beautiful wife who had run up $600 worth of bills, than with a plain unattractive one . . . It was nice to be beautiful. It made things so much simpler!

THERE was no one at Miss Briggs' desk in Dick's outer office.

From the inner room came the sound of voices.

Glory sat down in Miss Briggs' swivel chair to wait.

The office was warm. After a while Glory took off her coat, and then her hat. The light crown had left a red band on her forehead. She rubbed it gently with her fingertips. . . .

"—and I told him that Mother and I could take care of the two older children. But I guess it's going to be too much for Mother. She's not so very well."

Miss Briggs' voice!

And what was she talking about? . . . Glory listened.

Silence for a long moment. Then Dick's voice.

"Would it help you any if I gave you a little raise . . . say about $5 more a week?" he was saying. "Then you could hire a woman to help your mother out with the children."

"Of course, it would help . . . but I think you're paying me all I'm worth now, Mr. Gregory," Miss Briggs' soft voice answered. Her shadow appeared on the frosted glass pane of the door between the two offices.

Glory rose. She gathered her bills in one hand and opened the door. Miss Briggs nodded at her, and slipped out.

"Hello, there, Rikky Tikky Tavy!" Glory greeted Dick cheerfully. She perched herself on the corner of Dick's desk. "You'll pardon me for breaking in on your interesting conversation with Miss Briggs . . . but I got tired waiting while she vamped some more salary from you!"

"Hush!" Dick said. He walked over and tried the handle of the door to see that it was shut tight. "She'll hear you."

"It's a good thing I caught you in this generous mood," Gloria went on with exarism in her voice, "because I'm calling on money matters, myself."

She laid the bills down on Dick's desk. He didn't touch them.

"I want to explain to you about course. And Dick couldn't read and rave about the bills in front of Miss Briggs!

Glory rose. She gathered her bills in one hand and opened the door. Miss Briggs nodded at her, and slipped out.

"Hello, there, Rikky Tikky Tavy!" Glory greeted Dick cheerfully. She perched herself on the corner of Dick's desk. "You'll pardon me for breaking in on your interesting conversation with Miss Briggs . . . but I got tired waiting while she vamped some more salary from you!"

"Hush!" Dick said. He walked over and tried the handle of the door to see that it was shut tight. "She'll hear you."

"It's a good thing I caught you in this generous mood," Gloria went on with exarism in her voice, "because I'm calling on money matters, myself."

She laid the bills down on Dick's desk. He didn't touch them.

"I want to explain to you about course. And Dick couldn't read and rave about the bills in front of Miss Briggs!

Glory dressed herself with great care. On the way downtown she stopped at the florist's and bought an orchid for her coat. The windshield mirror told her that she was looking unusually lovely.

It would be much harder for Dick to quarrel with a beautiful wife who had run up $600 worth of bills, than with a plain unattractive one . . . It was nice to be beautiful. It made things so much simpler!

THERE was no one at Miss Briggs' desk in Dick's outer office.

From the inner room came the sound of voices.

Glory sat down in Miss Briggs' swivel chair to wait.

The office was warm. After a while Glory took off her coat, and then her hat. The light crown had left a red band on her forehead

Do you know—That you can cut your gas bills fully ten per cent—

That it is possible to get quicker cooking service and better results?

Government laboratory tests have proved time and time again that the nearer you can bring the bottom of the cooking utensil to the burner with perfect combustion, the faster and better you cook and the more gas you save.

Your pan or kettle should be within seven-eighths of an inch of the burner, saving fully ten per cent in fuel.

For obvious reasons, with proper combustion the closer you bring your kettle to the burner, the faster the heat.

Gas should be conserved. When you save gas you save money.
